DEPARTMENT OF POLITICAL SCIENCE

HANDBOOK FOR THE GRADUATE PROGRAM

2018

The Department of Political Science at the University of New Mexico offers both the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees, with strengths in American Politics/Policy and Comparative/Latin American Politics.

This handbook is designed to provide an overview of policies pertaining to graduate education in the Political Science Department. Requirements and course listings can be found in the current UNM Catalog (<http://catalog.unm.edu/catalogs/2018-2019/>).

General Requirements of the Office of Graduate Studies

The Office of Graduate Studies (OGS) is the central graduate academic administrative unit at the University of New Mexico. Students are expected to meet their general requirements per the UNM Catalog (<http://catalog.unm.edu/catalogs/2018-2019/>).

1. CONCENTRATIONS OF STUDY

The Department offers concentrations in the following areas:

American Politics
Comparative Politics
International Relations
Public Policy
Methodology

A pro-seminar (with the exception of methodology) and comprehensive examination is offered in each of these concentrations. A pro-seminar is also offered in Latin American Politics as part of the Comparative Politics concentration.

2. COMMITTEE ON STUDIES (COS)

The key to successful progress in all graduate programs is for the student to work closely with his or her faculty advisory committee, known at UNM as the Committee on Studies (COS). The department encourages students to select the three-member committee carefully. The Committee on Studies should contain expertise in the student's chosen concentration(s).

The Department must be notified in writing of the COS membership, using the COS form available from the department, by February 15, or one month into the second semester of graduate study. Students should review their COS membership periodically and change as needed.

3. M.A. AND Ph.D. TIMELINE

Deadlines for completion of program requirements are based on full-time graduate status (enrollment in at least 9 credit hours per semester). Students in part-time status will have their deadlines approved by the graduate committee on a case-by-case basis, according to a student's progress through the program.

4. MASTER OF ARTS—CORE & CONCENTRATION REQUIREMENTS

The master's program is designed to introduce students to the breadth of the discipline, while providing tools for in-depth independent research. Students receive training in research methodologies that permits them to pursue original research in their chosen concentration. The M.A. is offered under two plans, with thesis and without. Those who opt to write a Master's thesis must take at least 24 credit hours of coursework. The student will select a member of the graduate faculty to serve as director of the thesis, normally the chair of the COS. The non-thesis plan entails a minimum of 32 credit hours.

Students in the M.A. program must take POLS 581 (Statistics for Social Research), POLS 582 (Political Science as a Discipline and a Profession), and POLS 580 (Introduction to Empirical Research). Students must also complete at least one graduate research seminar. In addition, M.A. students must complete pro-seminars in at least three concentrations. Pro-seminars are designed to be a wide-ranging introduction to the literature of a concentration. The Department discourages students from enrolling in hybrid courses (undergraduate courses for which graduate credit is allowed); hybrid courses may only be taken with approval of the graduate advisor, in consultation with the COS when available. All requirements for the Master's degree must be completed within a five-year period.

Students who select the methodology concentration must take two additional methodology courses in political science or other disciplines, as approved by the political science graduate advisor, over and above the methodology sequence (581, 580 and 681), and one research seminar employing advanced research methods.

Program of Studies

Students are required to submit a Program of Studies (available on the OGS website <https://grad.unm.edu/resources/gs-forms/pos-masters.html>). Subsequently, the Program of Studies must be approved by the chair of the Committee on Studies, the Department Chair, and the Office of Graduate Studies. This form must be submitted to department graduate program coordinator prior to the Office of Graduate Studies deadlines of March 1st, October 1st or July 1st of the semester prior to taking the comprehensive exam.

M.A. Comprehensive Exam

Research Paper: To satisfy the University of New Mexico requirement for an M.A. comprehensive examination, students are required to complete a research paper. The paper must meet the quality standards of a professional political science conference, in any concentration that is offered by the department, and for terminal masters students must be completed no later than April 1st of the fourth semester for a spring graduation date. A first draft of the paper must be completed by the end of the student's third semester of coursework, giving the student up to one additional semester to polish the paper to the expected quality standards. Students are encouraged to complete a draft of their paper as part of POLS 580: Introduction to Empirical Research, a required course normally taken in a student's third semester. The paper will be evaluated by two members of the department faculty, chosen by the student in consultation with the Committee on Studies, one of whom needs to have primary expertise in the paper's area of concentration. Papers will be evaluated as: Ph.D. level pass with distinction, Ph.D. level pass, M.A. level pass, or fail. The evaluating committee will provide a single assessment of the final paper. Any student who does not meet the end of the fourth semester deadline for completing the paper will receive a fail. Students who receive an M.A. or Ph.D. level pass (and who have completed all other requirements towards the degree) will be eligible to receive an M.A. degree. Students who do not receive a passing grade will be allowed one opportunity to re-submit the paper before the start of the next semester. Students who receive a failing grade on the paper after their second attempt will be dismissed from the program. In order to continue towards the Ph.D. degree, students must receive a Ph.D. level pass on their first or second attempts. Students planning to receive their M.A. degree in the semester in which they complete the research paper requirement must adhere to all OGS graduation deadlines. Students who receive less than a Ph.D. pass on their research paper will generally not be issued an assistantship contract for the subsequent semester.

 This timeline is based on full-time status.*

Timelines will be adjusted on a case-by-case basis

General Requirements of the Office of Graduate Studies for the Master's Degree

The Office of Graduate Studies (OGS) is the central graduate academic administrative unit at the University of New Mexico. Masters students are expected to meet their general requirements per the UNM Catalog (<http://catalog.unm.edu/catalogs/2018-2019/>).

5. DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY—CORE & CONCENTRATION REQUIREMENTS

The Ph.D. requires 48 total hours of coursework, plus 18 hours of 699 (Dissertation). All students must complete, at UNM, the methodology sequence (POLS 581, 580 and 681), Survey of Political Science as a Discipline and Profession (POLS 582); three pro-seminars (including one in each chosen concentration); two research seminars in their primary concentration and one research seminar in their secondary concentration. Grades of a “B” or higher must be attained in POLS 581 and 580. All core and concentration courses/requirements must be fulfilled before taking the comprehensive exams.

Students who select the methodology concentration must take two additional methodology courses in political science or other disciplines, as approved by the political science graduate advisor, over and above the methodology sequence (581, 580 and 681), and one research seminar employing advanced research methods.

Transfer Work

Students entering the Ph.D. program with an M.A. degree from another institution or department must complete the general coursework and credit requirements listed above for all Ph.D. students. On rare occasion, the Political Science Graduate Committee, may, at its sole discretion, waive a general or specific course requirement upon presentation of evidence that a student’s coursework at a previous graduate institution is fully equivalent to UNM Ph.D. level Political Science offerings. Transfer work, per the Office of Graduate Studies, may not exceed 50% of the coursework applied toward the degree.

Ph.D. Comprehensive Examinations

Research Paper: Students are required to complete a research paper, which meets the quality standards of a professional political science conference, in any concentration offered by the department, no later than the end of their fourth semester. A first draft of the paper must be completed by the end of the student’s third semester of coursework, giving the student one additional semester to polish the paper to the expected quality standards. Students will present their papers to the department before the end of the fourth semester, as scheduled by the department. Students are encouraged to complete a draft of their paper as part of POLS 580: Introduction to Empirical Research, a required course taken in a student’s third semester. The paper will be evaluated by two members of the department faculty chosen by the student in consultation with the Committee on Studies, one of which needs to have primary expertise in the paper’s area of concentration. Papers will be evaluated as: Ph.D. level pass with Distinction, Ph.D. level pass, M.A. level pass, or fail. Any student who does not meet the end of the fourth semester deadline for completing the paper will receive a fail. Students who receive a passing grade (and who have completed all other requirements towards the degree) will automatically receive an M.A. degree en route. Students who do not receive a passing grade at the Ph.D. level will be allowed one opportunity to re-submit the paper before the start of the next semester. Students who do not receive a Ph.D. pass on the paper after their second attempt will be dismissed from the Ph.D. program, but are eligible to receive a terminal M.A. Ph.D. students (or students in the M.A. program wishing to continue towards the Ph.D. degree) must receive a Ph.D. level pass on their first or second attempts. Students who fail to receive a Ph.D. level pass will not be allowed to take the written and oral examinations required for the Ph.D. Students who receive less than a Ph.D. pass on the research paper will generally not be issued an assistantship contract for the following semester.

Written and Oral Examinations: Ph.D. students will be required to pass two examinations (a combined written and oral examination in their primary concentration and a written exam in their secondary concentration), before being advanced to candidacy. Doctoral comprehensive exams in both concentrations will be taken in the same semester, with a one- or two-day break scheduled between the written exams and must be taken no later than the middle of the sixth semester, as scheduled by the department. The written exams will be followed as soon as feasible (normally within two weeks) by an oral exam in the student's primary concentration before a committee of three faculty members. Students will have 8 hours to complete two questions for each written exam. Three faculty members in each concentration will evaluate written exams. In the student's primary concentration, the written and oral parts of the examination will be evaluated as one exam. Exams are graded as pass with distinction, pass, or fail. The evaluating committees in each of the concentrations will provide a single assessment of the exams in each of the primary and secondary concentrations. Students who do not receive a pass in either concentration will have one opportunity to retake the failed exam(s) before the start of the next semester, as scheduled by the department. Failure to pass comprehensive examinations will result in dismissal from the Ph.D. program, and cancelation of any contracts. Students who receive less than a Ph.D. pass on the comprehensive exam in either concentration may not be issued an assistantship contract for the subsequent semester. Students who pass exams in both of their concentrations will be advanced to degree candidacy.

Masters En route

Students will be granted an M.A. en route following their successful completion of the research paper, which constitutes the M.A. comprehensive exam. Students are required to submit a Program of Studies (available on the OGS website <http://grad.unm.edu/resources/gs-forms/index.html>). Subsequently, the Program of Studies must be approved by the chair of the Committee on Studies, the Department Chair, and the Office of Graduate Studies. This form must be submitted to department staff prior to the Office of Graduate Studies deadlines of March 1st, October 1st or July 1st of the semester prior to receiving the M.A. en route.

Dissertation

Upon passing the comprehensive exams, the candidate may proceed to the dissertation phase, assuming all other department and Office of Graduate Studies requirements have been met. At this point, students may want to reconstitute their Committee on Studies to reflect areas of concentration in the dissertation proposal. A Dissertation Committee of no less than four members is assembled, including the dissertation advisor. At least one member shall be from another graduate unit or university based on competence in an area related to the candidate's dissertation. Forms for appointing Dissertation Committees are available on the Office of Graduate Studies' website (<http://grad.unm.edu/resources/gs-forms/index.html>). It is the responsibility of the candidate's Dissertation Committee to approve the student's dissertation proposal and to supervise the student's progress through completion of the project. The candidate prepares a formal dissertation proposal of 10-20 pages, plus appendices, and orally defends the proposal before the Dissertation Committee, before proceeding with the dissertation. The dissertation proposal must be approved by a majority of the committee and a copy of the approved dissertation proposal is to be placed in the student's file. If, in the opinion of a majority of the Committee, a student's work on his or her dissertation proposal or dissertation does not show satisfactory progress, the student will be notified, in writing, that his or her degree candidacy may be terminated. During the dissertation stage, normal progress is considered to be a chapter of written work for each semester, or its equivalent in terms of fieldwork, library research, or data collection and/or analysis.

Application for Candidacy and Appointment of Dissertation Committee

Students are required to submit an Application for Candidacy and Appointment of Dissertation (available on the OGS website <http://ogs.unm.edu/resources/ogs-forms/index.html>). This form must be submitted to department staff to be approved by the chair of the Committee on Studies, the Department Chair, and the Office of Graduate Studies prior to the student being advanced to candidacy.

General Requirements of the Office of Graduate Studies for the Doctoral Degree

The Office of Graduate Studies (OGS) is the central graduate academic administrative unit at the University of New Mexico. Students are expected to meet their general requirements per the UNM Catalog (<http://catalog.unm.edu/catalogs/2018-2019/>).

6. ACADEMIC PROGRESS REVIEW

The academic records of all graduate students are reviewed each semester. M.A. candidates must maintain a cumulative GPA of at least 3.2 on all graduate courses taken at UNM, while Ph.D. students must maintain a GPA of 3.5. Failure to meet this requirement will result in academic probation and—if not corrected within two semesters—expulsion from the program. A student may include no more than two ‘C’s in his or her program, as stipulated on the Application for Candidacy and Program of Studies. A student receiving a third ‘C’ or a lower grade (including NC) will suffer automatic suspension. At the dissertation stage, students will receive a grade of “progress” (P) or “no progress” (NP) from their advisors each semester. Failure to show progress on the dissertation is grounds for termination of candidacy.

7. TRANSFERRING FROM THE M.A. TO THE Ph.D. PROGRAM

M.A. students who have who have passed the Research Paper at the Ph.D. level may apply for a transfer from the M.A. to Ph.D. program. Currently enrolled M.A. students will not need to fill out another application form, but they must--(i) provide three letters of recommendation from UNM faculty and (ii) provide at least one writing sample from their graduate career at UNM. Once accepted into the Ph.D. program, the transition will be effected with the “Change of Degree Level” form submitted to the Office of Graduate Studies.

Admission to the Ph.D. program is competitive. Internal applicants are considered in a pool with external applicants. For internal applicants, we see our own M.A. program as appropriate screening for the Ph.D. program.

8. FINANCIAL AID

Every semester a review is made of each student’s progress toward completing degree requirements. Also reviewed are the teaching and research needs of the department. Financial aid decisions are made in view of these considerations. Financial assistance is generally granted in any one of five contexts:

Teaching Assistant – The T.A. is specifically responsible for teaching a section of an undergraduate course for the Department. The Award includes: annual stipends that meet or exceed the minimum salary guidelines set forth by the Office of Graduate Studies, a full or partial tuition waiver, and in-state tuition for hours above the waiver allowance. Teaching Assistantships are limited to those who have passed the comprehensive exam in the appropriate concentration or at the department’s discretion.

Graduate Assistant – the duties of the Graduate Assistant are related to research and/or instruction, but do not directly involve an autonomous teaching responsibility for a class. The G.A. Award includes: annual stipends that meet or exceed the minimum salary guidelines set forth by the Office of Graduate Studies, a full or partial tuition waiver, and in-state tuition for hours above the waiver allowance. Both M.A. and Ph.D. students are eligible for a Graduate Assistantship.

Teaching Associate – a Teaching Associate holds a Master’s Degree (or its equivalent) and is hired to teach an independent course or course section. Associates are paid on a per-course basis.

Research Assistant – the R.A. is responsible for the research end of projects conducted within the Department. Stipends vary with available funding, and tuition reimbursements depend on the budget associated with a funded research project.

Other assistantship and fellowship opportunities exist with the Office of Graduate Studies, Center for Regional Studies, the Latin American and Iberian Institute, the Southwest Hispanic Research Institute and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Center. The Department Chair and the Graduate Advisor will seek to nominate students from the department when invited to do so, or will encourage applications for such awards when there is an open competition.

The number of assistantships is limited. The Department's Graduate Committee allocates them to both current and new graduate students. The committee considers GPA, previous teaching and/or research experience, performance in Political Science graduate courses, and evidence of normal progress within the program for enrolled students. For newly admitted students, letters of recommendation, GRE scores, writing samples, prior grades, and statements of academic and career interest are considered.

For M.A. students, financial aid is limited to four semesters. For Ph.D. candidates, aid may be limited to six semesters beyond the M.A. degree at the department's discretion.

Continued financial support depends upon satisfactory academic performance, fulfillment of assigned responsibilities, and department resources. At the end of each semester, the Graduate Committee reviews the academic records of all continuing students, as well as evaluations of the students by faculty members to whom they are assigned. If evidence of a problem emerges, the head of the Graduate Committee counsels the student regarding areas of strength and weakness, and provides suggestions for improved performance. Students will be notified in writing of any performance failures that might jeopardize continuing their financial support.
